As women will

As women will, she knew more than i
She did not think that she couldn't fly
She saw her wings and groomed them well
She left me sitting in my own hell

As women will, she grieved with grace
It mattered not, the time or place
'Twas not constrained by guilt or shame
T'would that i were quite the same

As women will, she trusted heart
She did not think it lived apart
While i looked inward and searched for my soul
She's the one who was really whole

As women will, she let me go
Little did i think or know
That the pain i felt was helpful still
That made me stronger and did not kill

As women will, she spoke so wise
Despite her wearing a disguise
For men she saw didn't trust her mind
Tis we of course who are so blind
