Bittersweet

Bittersweet the moments that bring us such joy
The love that is shared between a girl and a boy
The tenderness heart, so fragile and open
Knowing that someday that heart must be broken

The child born into a world with clear eyes
Who laughs with abandon, who honestly cries
She's growing older and stays home in fear
Never again to shed empathy's tear

Bittersweet the life of each person on earth
Such joy and such sorrow arrives with each birth
For life is a rainbow the stretches through space
Gorgeous yet sad, disappears without a trace

This song has no message, no moral to preach nothing i tell you, nothing to teach Bittersweet if we're open to all that life brings
Our heart weeping open just as it sings
