Do you or do you not

Do you or do you not admit that you don't know
You think you have a monopoly on the way things ought to go
But you don't know the slightest thing about how we all decide
You stand around and cast your judgements, your ego open wide

I beg you just to take a sec and think hard about this one
Complexity and nuance comes with the rising sun
But you think that your judgement is the how we all should act
As if your observations constitute a given fact

Do you or do you know have some humility
I would say your self-important to a great degree
I am not so interested in your thoughts or musing
In fact i will not listen la la la i am refusing

I'm just so goddamned tired of all the experts in the place
The level of hubris is really quite a grand disgrace
In the end i'll listen to my heart and i'll stand tall
I will not cower to your ego, i will not take that fall

Do you or do you not, i don't really care
I am going to speak my mind, i am going to share
I'd tell you to go  yourself but that would be so crass
So i'm gonna wave and say goodbye, i have too much class
