Fleeting

It's all fleeting, this is not a bad thing
Somedays dizzy, in my ear a deafening ring
Sometimes jubilant, as if the stars are all in line
The next day darkness, why do we struggle to define

I feel despair, in one moment i am lost
I can't sleep, in the bed i turn and toss
But like every moment, this one passes and is gone
A million moments, a million times a new dawn

And still we struggle, these feelings seem to overwhelm
We can't believe that we dwell within this realm
But wait a second, take a breath and patient be
For in a heartbeat, from this obsession we will be free

It's all fleeting
One at a time i can hear my heart still beating
I know deep down when i hover it is self-defeating
Fleeting

Think back on all of the crises that you have heard or seen
All the times you have wondered how this could have come into being
And now reflect on how the feelings are distant memories
A sound so powerful today, tomorrow gone like an ocean breeze
