

292-1000

Have you been there

Have you been there, that darkest place
Where It's hard see a loving face
And all around you rough seas break
You're not sure how much more you can take

Have you been there, despair so deep
Sometimes you wish your mind could keep
Your heart from feeling such a pain
There's no way normalcy to feign

Have you been there, that lacquered haze
Many call it just a phase
But shape you it carves a deep hole
Into your mourning of your soul

Have you been there, when laughs surround
But you cannot hear that dulcet sound
For a symphony of despair deep
Leaves all alone to weep

Have you been there, well i'm there now
I know i'll make it through somehow
And on the other side will find
A piece of my i've left behind