He turned, i waved

What do you do when a wave isn't seen
Do you yell to get attention in fear you'll be a been
Do you worry that the love you feel will not be echoed back Or is it really love if just reflection's what you lack?

What do you do when you wave and think your intentions not understood Do you send a note explaining how you feel and why you should?
Do you perseverate and obsess over every nuanced interaction perceiving incorrectly is its own form of distraction

When i wave to my son
I do so out of fear
If he doesn't see me
I may disappear
Doesn't he recognize my wave for him's for me
Waving back you verify
My humanity
