I like people

I like people, i really do
Left and right, yes it's true
The Southern baptist and the orthodox jew
I like em all

I like people, it's not a lie
The policeman who stops me for speeding by
The bully who makes my children cry
I like em all

I like people, it's strange to say
I like em more every day
I like em even when i want them to go away
I like em all

Why, why you ask

I guess it's because i see myself
In each and every face i know
I'm no better and no worse
There but for some grace i go
I'm happy to spend time with every man
Drinking coffee and prattling on
But even though i like em all
I'm also fine when they are gone
