I was really surprised

I was really surprised by how i felt
I didn't expect the tears to come
That's the thing about being alive
Just when I am feeling numb
Something makes me turn around
A guitar lick or other sound
The smell of autumn in the breeze
And suddenly i'm on my knees
And into the earth i soon melt
And yet i'm always surprised by how i felt
Does that make me silly
Does that make me naive
You'd think this tapestry I weave
Would somehow be familiar now
But truth be known something dies
When nothing in life is a surprise
So i hold it close, this naivete
I'll keep it for another day
One more day
I awaken surprised
