It all bears down on me

There's a weight on my shoulders
An emptiness that bears down on me
How can hollow weigh so much
How i search for some crutch
Something to hold me up and it all bears down on me
From the inside out
That cavern just below my heart
I'm still waiting for time to start
To heal
So i can feel
That weight
Lifted from my shoulders
For a moment
And still it all bears down on me
And i keep my mouth shut tight
I tell you all the future looks so bright
And I smile
All the while
It all bears down on me
And when i cry
I hide from view
Just like you do
And decades on
An old man now
A graying brow
I don't know how
But i still have moments
When the empty remains
Time disdains
And it all bears down on me again
