

313-1000

Love five

That ache i feel every morning in my chest
The empty pit in the bottom of my belly
The dizziness that makes me hold onto the wall
When my legs start to shake and wobble all a jelly

My wandering mind that makes me lose my words
The tears that rise, like lava in my throat
The panic that hits when the pillow meets my head
I'm up at 3 and i'm reaching for my coat

Black and white, the world devoid of color
Winter arrives and never will depart
Fantasy time and i'm reaching for the bottle
Can i really survive this broken heart

The world move on like a cinema event
Laughter ringing out from the kids in the park
Spring arrives with the warmth of the sun
Still i feel shrouded all in dark

I dive deep into the abyss
I stare right at the beast and make my peace
Love has brought me to this place of pain
Truth is i don't want it to cease

This suffering that defines me
This terrible despair
Is rich and poignant
Thank god i finally care