Merely looking

Why would someone sign up for an account on match or fish
If they weren't looking for something beyond a passing wish
These people who claim on cupid that they're only passing by
Are they really disinterested or is this just another lie

Online dating is a place where lying is all the rage
People lie about their interests, they lie about their age
The women tell the world that they are truly drama free
The men say i am sensitive and manly, both you see

In these places people falsely represent the truth
A date or two upends the charade, it doesn't take a sleuth
Just take a moment and you'll realize the portraits are a ruse
No one wants to tell the truth when the buyers are confused

The woman who loves exercise is actually an endorphin freak
She runs and kayaks not for fun, without it her world is bleak
She gobbles celexa and wellbutrin but says that life is grand
Emotionally she is disabled but still she wants a man

The man who rides his Harley doesn't know himself at all
His claims of independence hide the truth of his downfall
He really is an infant, he wants his mommy to come quick
I pity all the women who buy his bullshit macho schtick

No one's merely looking
Everyone's in pain
The biggest liars of them all
Have the most to gain
They'll play you like a fiddle
Just to fulfill their wretched need
To all the suckers who fall prey
My heart for you can't bleed
