Most of the things

Most of the things i own i do not need
I purchase stuff to help me feel, to satisfy my greed
But usually i end up giving all that shit away
Frustrated that my impulse to spend i still obey

Most of the things that make me happy tweak my mind
Chocolate, a glass of wine, excitement of some kind
But all that stuff evaporates and leaves me feeling blue
Dopamine's enjoyable but it isn't really true

Most of the good things in life are really free
Not sure i buy that line, i guess it's just not me
I fantasize about my millions, retiring in the hills
Never again worrying about how i'll pay my bills

Most of the things i hear our leaders say
Reinforce my belief in our moral decay
Lying is their art form, duplicity their creed
They don't really give a fuck if my kids i cannot feed

Most of the songs i write speak truth to how i feel
When it comes to other people, i refuse to kneel
But honestly i'd still like to be rich and pull your strings
But i wouldn't buy a ton of crap, i just don't like most things
