

488-1000
Never fear

You were in my English class
Sitting quiet in the back
Of the room

You never said a thing about it
How was I to know
That each day you faced the dark but your fear you'd never show

We were on the bus that day
Listening to each other's, Spotify
I smiled and you smiled back
When the same line from the same song, made us both cry

When you said that i could read your journal
The one you kept under lock and key
I never could have realized
That reading about you, was like reading about me

And you had never said a thing about it
How was I to know
That each day you faced the dark but any fear you'd never show

Lying under the stars that night
I bared my soul, my awful shame
And open as we shared our stories
I washed away that silent pain

Do you know, you saved me that day
Finally i knew i was not alone
I had committed no crime
I had nothing for which i had to atone
Do you know, You saved me that day
for now i never live in fear
For in the darkness we sing together
And in my heart that's all i hear