

54-1000
no room to turn avoidance is an essential part of my existence change the subject instead of offering resistance avoid conflict with those whose knowledge lacks an understanding of the very basic facts this is most true with my parents and my sister the latter being the most defiant resistor defending her perceptions with every waking breath acknowledging her part would be akin to death but there are times when in a corner I'm compelled to argue tooth and nail, mythology dispelled it's those time when i find there is no room left to turn that for the pretense of serenity i must admit i yearn how can we talk when you have no idea what really constitutes what is actual and real your concept of reality has no basis in fact thus i change the subject to avoid being attacked how can we communicate when you live in a fog

a universe concocted shared on your little blog i'm amazed that you can't see the beliefs you have invented
thus i change the subject
you can't hear that i've dissented