Oh the irony

The greatest irony of all
The one that makes me roll my eyes
The one where truth slowly dies
Extremists you see are never wise
The greatest irony of all
The one where guns blow off one's toes
And who the hell sees where logic goes
For crazy people never seem to know
When
Their very own dogma hurts their peeps
Where loved ones perish in faith leaps
A toxic brew where hatred steeps
You see
The greatest irony of all
Is our incapability of recognizing
That we act against our own self interest
We vote for the right
We fight the good fight
But deep in the night
We see
That the right does not care about the poor
That secretly we are shown the door
And then we know what's truly in store
For us
Or
We vote for the left
And yet we discover all that theft
Was carried about by liberals of ethics and morals bereft
And we see
We're pretty much on our own
And so
The greatest irony of all
Is that we continue to believe that those in power want to help us all
