On the horizon

On the horizon, are better things in store
I know i don't need very much but maybe i'll have more
Or maybe i will find that all elusive peace of mind
Perhaps on the horizon i will finally unwind

On the horizon, the pain will drift away
Like a boy i'll find the time to amble and to play
Or maybe one more lover who knows my every thought
Sometimes lost in such fantasy i am caught

On the horizon, i'll feel joy once again
Now i simply toil away and smile when i can
But hopeful i remain that someday so sublime
I'll revel in each moment and live lost in time

On the horizon
A simple little phrase
Left wanting
I drift in the haze
On the horizon
Sounds benign enough
But today i find the thought
Of that horizon kinda rough
