

290-1000
Several minutes

For several minutes i stood and stared
Could anyone see, did anyone care
The two who slept away from sight
Had they been there through the night

And me to starbucks for some tea
Red leaves adorn an autumn tree
And huddled in the alley way
Asleep despite the light of day

Who were these two when they were young
What rhymes recited, songs they sung
Were they loved and did they feel
And look at what the time did steal

And now i sit with tea in hand
Wond'ring how in such a land
The coffee flows like red red wine
Across the street the people dine

And in the alley way right here
The two asleep alone i fear
And several minutes now has passed
Off i skip to my next class
