Such a fool

What i fool i was to fall for your gestures of love
Trust me, i know you didn't mean to do me wrong
It's just that you conflated desire with an open heart
And i knew it all along

This is how most people see the world
They view through a lens that's misleading
They crave the attention that another human gives Admitting such a flaw is self-defeating

And so we call something love that isn't love at all just another kind of addiction
And fools like me over and again fall into the trap
Our neediness smothers our suspicion

And here i am again
I am such a fool
With passion at an end
My love no longer cool
Here i am again
Destroyed and broken
I knew it all along
I wish we'd never spoken
