That i did not

I admit i said i loved you when it was only lust
I lied about the way i felt, took advantage of your trust
I didn't mean to be a jerk, but you were so damned hot
But all those things you said i did, that i so did not

I did not drive your brand new car into that big oak tree
That was you after a night of binging on sangree
I did not light the fire that consumed your favorite dress
Though i laughed a bit as up in smoke it went i must confess

I did not write the letter that you found under your couch
Whoever wrote it thought you were a two-timers, that's an ouch
And i did not call your mom and dad the couple wed in hell
Though something tells me that when married they cracked the wedding bell

That i did not
Blame someone new
That i did not
Another did that to you
That i did not
I wouldn't be so mean
Even though at times i did far worse
Inside my dreams
