

93-1000
The same thing

She said she didn't tell a lie
Her conscious was thus clean
She may have profited as others do
From events still unseen
But nothing in the rulebook
Says what she did was wrong
She simply didn't let us know
But she knew all along

He said as long as they don't catch you
It isn't all that bad
Some might argue you shouldn't cheat
But morality's a fad
People hold you to a standard
They don't themselves observe
He said that is hypocrisy
To follow them's absurd

He said he understands that some
Will find his wealth disturbing
He calls himself a liberal
Which is even more perturbing
He preaches from his pulpit
That poverty's a crime
He then retreats to his mansion
In his hot tub he unwinds

Lies of omission
It's the same thing
Please no contrition
You have too much bling
No way to justify
All the contradictions
Actions speak the loudest
Not spoken convictions
