The times they aren't a changin

Come gather my people wherever you roam
And ignore all the people who don't have home
Ignorance means you won't have to atone
All your comfort you won't be exchangin'
Climb into your Lexus and grab your iPhone
For the times they aren't a changin'

Come mothers and fathers throughout the land
Don't worry that college will cost 60 grand
Your children won't work as there'll be no demand
And protests they sure won't be wagin'
They'll plug in the earbuds and crank up the band
For the times they aren't a changin

Come writers and critics who prophesize with your pens
Pander to the market and dare not offend
For The truth matters not, you need money to spend
Self-help books are all the contagin'
Ignore social justice for your stock dividend
And the times they aren't a changin

Come senators congressmen please heed the call
When queried on issues remember to stall
And If he gets you elected support the Trump wall
For The voters don't know what they are gauging
Retire with millions, laugh aloud at your haul
For the times they aren't a changin'

The line it is drawn the curse it is cast
Just look at the fortune Bob Dylan's amassed
The depth of hypocrisy is unsurpassed
As a people we are disengaging
Forever entrenched in a system of caste
And the times they aren't a changin
