There must be a god

There must be a god
But not one above
This god lives in our hearts
We have named her love
This god lives in our souls
When we weep together
That's when we believe
That we will live forever

There must be a god
But not religion made
She's realized in honesty
Not in who gets paid
She finds form when holding hands
We lift each other up
I don't need a church
To share with you my cup

There must be a god
And It's not the words we say
When i am in despair
And when for me you pray
It's not that things will sudden shift
That this god will stop the bleed
It's not the scripture in a book
And what men have decreed

It's simple in its essence
Most basic at its core
The god that i believe in
Never shuts the door
She lives inside my very being
Comes forth with every tear
This then is the god i know
And why i have no fear

There must be a god
She's why i'm still alive
It's not about the teaching
It's nothing to contrive
There must be a god
We can find her when we cry
Our sorrow is the vehicle
Toward holiness we fly
