

350-1000
There will always be

There will always be
An empty chair, a silence loud
I will always feel
the setting sun, alone in a crowd
You will always stay
Alive and smiling, in my heart
There will always be
A new moment from which I can start

There will always be
A truth that is inviolate
But please don't worry, If you think you sin
I won't call you a hypocrite

This is not easy
This is not fun
Living this life
Can be easier said than done

And so another morning
There will always be
The sun
