

574-1000
This time i'll remember

You have lied to me one too many times
You have looked me in the eye and pretended it wasn't so
You have never once said you were sorry
I won't be all that sorry when you go

You have waved your hands and rolled your eyes
You have said it's all a ruse
The truth to you means nothing really
I suppose that's up to you to choose

But it's up to me to choose to listen
To consider anything you say
And i have decided not to tarry
I have decided to walk away

I hope others will follow suit
Your words meaning are not real
They are simply empty gestures
My attention they no longer steal

So prattle on, speak what you will
Blame the world for all it's ill
But i am wise and better still
I have had of you my fill

And this time, i'll remember
I promise you to do my best
This time i'll remember
You really are different from the rest