To anyone who'll listen

To anyone who'll listen, here is my plea
Always consider carefully what it means to be free
A strongman may seem tempting with his claims to make things right
But he'll soon erode your freedom when he asserts his will and might

To anyone who'll listen, here is my call
Stand up to the strongman and don't let him build a wall
Consider what you're keeping in when you're trying to keep out
And if he yells and puts you down you'd best stand up and shout

To anyone who'll listen, i challenge you to think
The koolaid that the strongman brews is dangerous to drink
Go study your history, look at what occurs
When the strongman lies and obfuscates, reality he blurs

To anyone who'll listen, the battle lines are drawn
The time for sitting idly by and ignoring is long gone
If anything is worthy of our passion and our will It's making sure the ego man his power can't fulfill

To anyone who'll listen, here is what i pray
That the strongman is defeated soundly on election day
That the people realize a republic is at stake
And not even the strongest man our freedom he can take
