Turn the tv on

Turn the tv on
Tune out the din
Put on the football game
I don't care who wins
Change the channel often
Keep the mind on low
Turn the tv on
Watch the latest show
Turn the tv on
Even when it's sunny
Each film has a moment
Some poignant, some funny
The weather channel tell me
The storms will fire today
Turn the tv on
Don't go out and play
I'm not one of those
Who think tv is bad
That watching fed pro wrestling
Is really all that bad
I'm happy when my brain
Is not on high and churning
When i turn the tv on
I suppress most of my yearning
Sure it's like a drug
But it's effects are temporary
And some would claim without it
I'd feel even more merry
But why are we compelled to always
Make each moment count
That are worth is evaluated
By some active amount
That kayaking and running
Are the measure of a man
And that being a couch potato
Should be forever banned
We're addicted to movement
To endorphins and to sweat
And those who judge my torpor
Let's make a little bet
I bet that i'll be happy
I bet that i'll be fine
I won't need to run a marathon
And then drink a glass of wine
I'll just turn on my tv
And all stress will melt away
And meanwhile you'll be runnin
To the gym near every day
And while i'm giggling happily
Watching rogan's film knocked up
You'll be forever trudging
Through the woods and keeping up
With the hiker and the biker
Playing golf and swatting flies
And meanwhile I'll be relaxing
And you'll be the first to die
