You won't think it's funny

Here's what i read on Yahoo news today
The Euro zone's collapsing, the world's in disarray
The temperatures are rising, and with them are the seas
Pesticides are killing all the bats and all the bees

Fanatical believers are busy blowing themselves sky high
They're willing to kill thousands and they don't even know quite why
On one street lives the billionaire with his pristine lawn
On the next block are hobos awakening outside every dawn

Companies eek profits from the suffering of the masses
They view the Zika virus through their green dollar colored glasses
Every new disease makes them wealthy beyond their dreams
Extorting from consumers every penny for their creams

The citizens are rising up, there are riots in the streets
While people stare vacant at their friend's most recent tweets
And all the while George Carlin up in heaven peers bemused
As every Baptist preacher of malfeasance is accused

You won't think it's funny
What I'm about to say
I know it's not P.C.
You will frown in your dismay
But my friend George was right
The planet's fine, he clucked
The truth that no one will admit
It's the people who are fucked

So i'll continue living my life to the standards that I set
I'll treat each fellow human like a brother just now met
I'll try to make each cloudy day into one that's sunny
And I'll never share that I find Carlin's musings very funny
